To the Fans of Mechwarrior and Battletech,

It has been a long journey bringing you Mechwarrior: Tactical Command onto mobile devices, starting with the iPad. Due to contractual obligations, we were required to release MechWarrior: Tactical Command in September. We believed we could push out a solid game by this deadline, but in retrospect, it led us to rush through testing. We hoped that we would have the game fully patched before its global release on iPad, but the update was delayed until the following week. We sincerely apologize for the disappointment. Since then we have been hard at work trying to resolve all the issues faced by MechWarrior and Battletech fans alike.

Since its launch, we adopted a rapid patching and release cycle and the constant crashes were quickly fixed with every update. Stability should be at an acceptable state on all recommended iPads. We do admit that there is still work to be done, and we are actively working on addressing all these issues including improved navigation, increased unit feedback/response, and performance enhancements across iPads.

As we add support for the other iOS devices, we appreciate the patience from all the fans out there. We have put in many late nights into producing a title we hope that you will find worthy of the Mechwarrior/Battletech name and I'd like to thank you for the continued support.

Yours sincerely
